

PRESS RELEASE

(Stavanger, NORWAY – 5th October 2022) Huddlestock Fintech AS (OSE: HUDL) signs significant partnership agreement with Morningstar (Nasdaq: MORN).

Huddlestock Fintech is delighted to announce an agreement with Morningstar, to provide both market and fundamental equity data through Huddlestock's white-label SaaS trading infrastructure, Huddlestock Trader. Clients offering trading apps and brokerage services to retail clients with Huddlestock Trader will be able to offer market data for global exchanges and fundamental equity data to their end clients.

"Morningstar's market data and fundamental equity data solutions will be delivered straight to the end client via our white-label trader solution. Huddlestock is taking a step further in empowering our clients to deliver a superior customer experience journey, increasing share of wallet, customer loyalty and retention for our clients," said John E. Skajem, Group CEO, Huddlestock Fintech AS.

"Morningstar's product suite is expansive, and we are delighted Huddlestock has chosen to work with us. Their clients need high quality, secure and reliable market, and fundamental equity data, enabling their teams and clients to open up financial markets to all," added Tim Kent, Sales Director, Morningstar Global Market Data Solutions.

The Morningstar content, available through Huddlestock, is delivered through API hooks directly pre-integrated into Huddlestock Trader. The ready-made white-label trading solution will initially include data from Oslo Stock Exchange, Nasdaq OMX, (Deutsche Börse's) Xetra Exchange, Baltic Exchanges, CBOE Europe and CBOE US, capturing the most traded stocks across European and US exchanges. At a later stage, the services can be rolled out to other exchanges and markets.

Morningstar's fundamental equity data will be delivered alongside its market data, opening the door to Morningstar's proprietary historical equity fundamental database. Retail End Users can access a range of fundamental data such as company profiles, including company financial statements, earnings reports and key ratios, measuring profitability, growth, cash flows, financial health, efficiency, and valuation, providing extensive insights into a company's business.
